

About Eogogics

Eogogics, pronounced “Eoh-gahjix” (or just “Gogics”, if you like), is your global knowledge services partner for training and consulting services in areas ranging from high-touch to high-tech.

While most of our services are performed business-to-business, some – for instance our research publications and public classes – are accessible to individuals as well.

About Eogogics Experts

Eogogics team members have been engaged in ground-breaking projects around the world for nearly two decades. The team consists of individuals with many diverse talents. But there are some traits they all share: they rank in the top 10% of their chosen field, enjoy problem-solving, and communicate with clarity and passion. This allows us to offer knowledge products and services the way no one else does.

Eogogics Knowledge Programs

Eogogics leverages innovative business practices and technology to deliver high quality services and products at a moderate cost. We offer live web-based courses with two-way interactivity (WebLive™), both as public and on-demand classes; customized classes taught onsite at the client site, consulting services, research reports, and more.

Management Team and Clientele

Eogogics is led by KK Arora and founded in 2005 by a team of telecommunications, IT, and training executives who have been involved with landmark projects and credited with many firsts in their respective industries. The six-person Eogogics senior management team collectively offers: 67 years of telecommunications, 39 years of IT, 74 years of soft skills and leadership development, 74 years of instructional system design (ISD), 91 years of in-class teaching, and 78 years of consulting experience. Our clients include companies, universities, research institutions, government agencies, non-profits, and trade associations worldwide.

Class Registration and Payment Methods

- Advance payment is required for all classes when you register
- For individual enrollment in WebLive™ Public classes, payment is made with a credit card using a secure payment facility. To participate in the class, you will need a computer connected to the Internet. If your computer has a webcam, you can upload your video to the class site.
- For group enrollments in WebLive™ Public classes, you will need to arrange for a room large enough to seat everyone in your group that is equipped with an Internet-enabled computer connected to a large computer monitor or projection screen. You can pay with a credit card using a secure payment facility or via bank wire.
- After you register for a WebLive™ class, you will receive an email confirming your enrollment. A couple of days before the actual class, you will receive a special ID that will allow you to attend the class.

Special Facilities for DR Congo

Mr. Lucky Bafulwa, Radio Technician, has kindly agreed to promote our programs for the benefit of DR Congo individuals and organizations. He will also distribute the Eogogics attendance certificates after the classes have completed.

To start the class registration process, visit www.eogogics.com/africa and follow the instructions provided to complete your registration and secure payment directly with Eogogics. Upon registration, you will receive a confirmation email. Save it, as it may be needed to receive admittance to the local WebLive™ On Demand programs. The local coordinator may be contacted as follows: e-mail: gap_rdc@yahoo.fr; telephone: 00243 816009072.

Frequently Asked Questions

What's a WebLive™ Class?

First, what it's not: It's NOT an e-learning, pre-recorded, or self-study course. It's a live class taught in real time by real instructors. Only, it's taught on the World Wide Web. Hence, WebLive™!

How Is a WebLive™ Class Taught?

You “meet” with the instructor and other class participants in a “virtual classroom” on our website. The classroom looks much like a real classroom, with a projection screen and white board. You can see and hear the instructor. He can hear you and, if you have a webcam, see you as well. You can raise your hand, ask a question, share computer applications, engage in discussion with your classmates, participate in a virtual lab, take a test, provide feedback, and much more. And, as with an onsite class, if you complete all of the class work, you will receive an attractive course certificate in PDF format by e-mail that you can have printed locally.

What Is WebLive™ Public versus WebLive™ On Demand?

Public classes are those open to individual registrants. See www.eogogics.com/classes for the current public class schedule. On Demand classes are those taught upon your request. You must have a group of at least 10 people to request a WebLive™ On Demand Class. Send your request for such classes to africa@eogogics.com

What Is an Onsite Class

An onsite class is a class taught upon your request at your company offices by an Eogogics instructor traveling from the nearest Eogogics office. You must have a group of at least 15-20 people to request an onsite class. Send your request for such classes to africa@eogogics.com

Will a Group Class Be Tailored to Our Needs?

Yes, all WebLive™ group classes and onsite classes are customized to the participant backgrounds and needs at no extra cost.
